What is a Monument?

A monument is far more than a means of marking the resting place of an individual or family.

It is a symbol of devotion. It is a tangible expression of the noblest of all human emotions – Love.

It should not reflect sorrow but rather the memories we wish to preserve for eternity.

A monument is created because there was a life – not a death; and with thoughtful consideration and proper guidance, should inspire hope for the living.

What is Laser Etching?

Laser etching was first introduced to the monument industry in 1989.

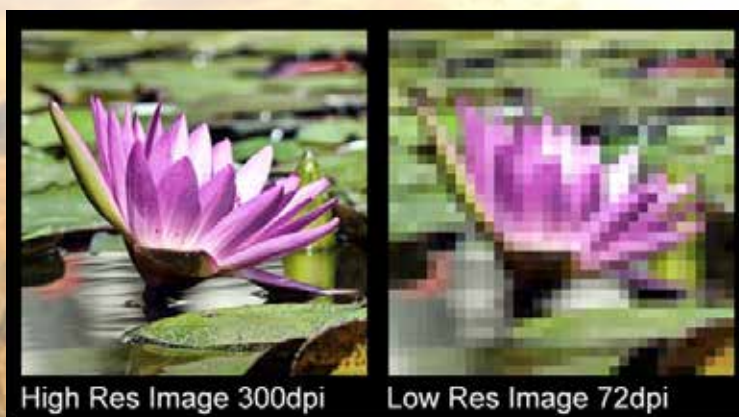

Laser etching is just what it sounds like, etching an image into stone using a high-powered laser. The laser removes the polish with incredible precision to etch your design in stone. You can achieve an eternal image with photo like details using laser etchings on fine grained black granite.

A Word on Quality

You often hear the term “high resolution” or “low resolution” when it comes to images or photos. You may ask, “why am I having to do this? My picture is very good quality and very clear!” After all it looks great on your computer monitor! But digital media works differently than print media, and one big difference is how each medium handles resolution.

The resolution of an image or picture describes the detail an image holds. The higher the resolution, the more detail the image has, because there is more information. Information translates to “pixels,” which are the different colored “dots” that make up an image. The more pixels there are, they more vivid and detailed to the naked eye the image will appear. If an image has very few pixels the image will appear to be “pixelated.”

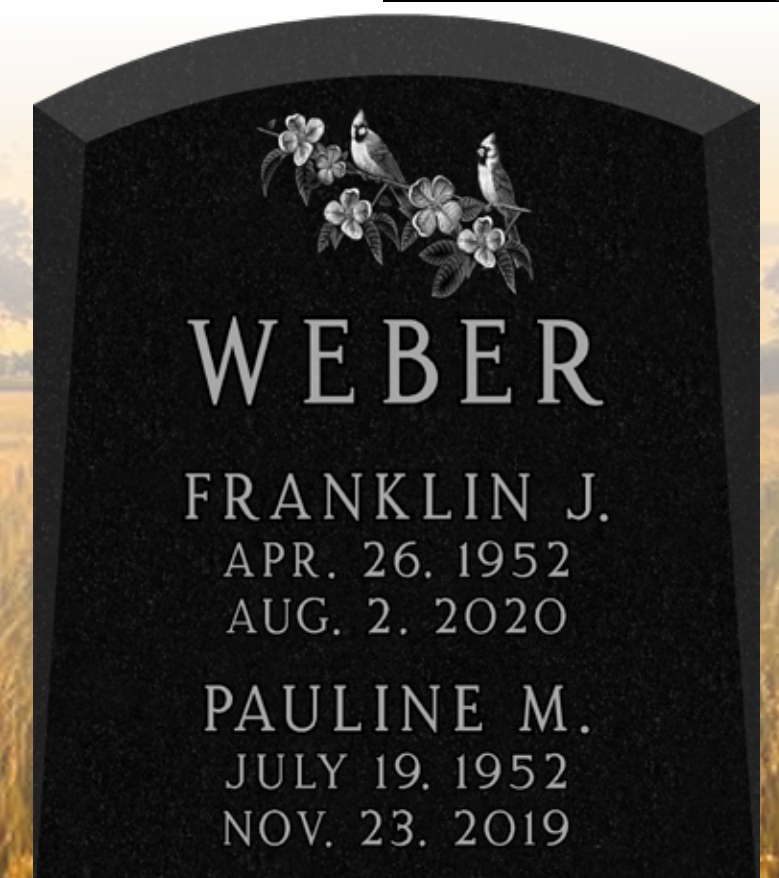

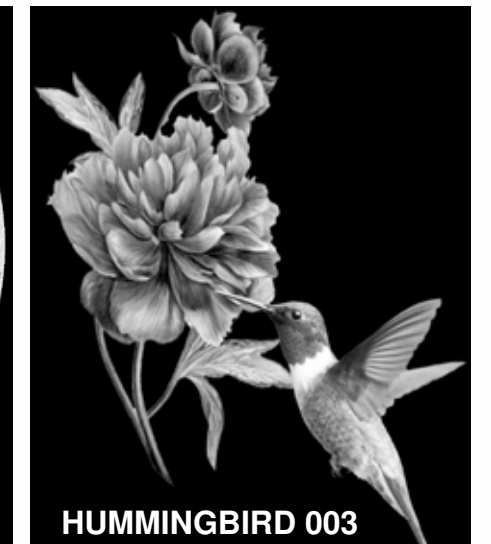

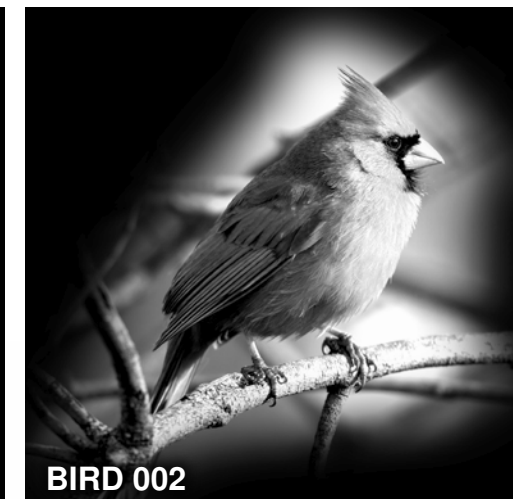

DPI, or dots per square inch, is the measurement printing companies use to determine how sharp an image is. Photos or images used for online or web graphics can be low resolution (72 dpi) and will look great on a computer screen, but try to print those same pictures and they’ll look very pixelated. For printing purposes images should be 300dpi or better.

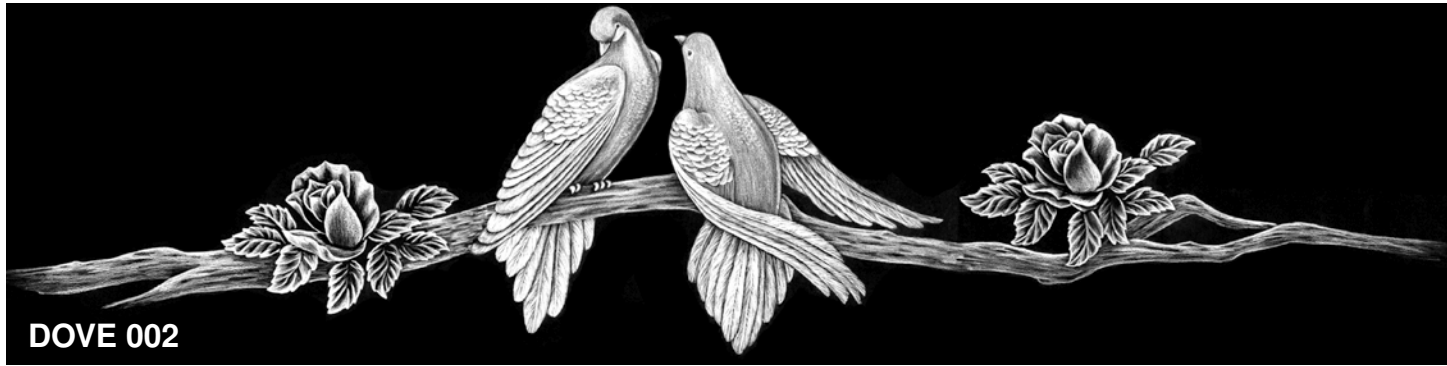

largest image with the highest resolution, or the actual photo for us to scan. We reserve the right to refuse any photo that does not meet our quality standards.

RULE OF THUMB - the larger the original image’s size and the higher its dpi resolution, the better the results. It’s always easier to decrease an image size and maintain quality, than to increase its size. Resolution is critical to a clear etching, but it’s not the only variable. A small sized image with good resolution will still produce a blurry image when scaled large.

Foot-prints in the sand
One night I had a dream. I was walking along the beach with the Lord, and across the skies flashed scenes from my life. In each scene I noticed two sets of footprints in the sand. One was mine, and one was the Lord's. When the last scene of my life appeared before me, I looked back at the footprints in the sand, and, to my surprise I noticed that many times along the path of my life there was only one set of footprints. And I noticed that it was at the lowest and saddest times in my life. I asked the Lord about it: "Lord, you said that once I decided to follow you, you would walk with me all the way. But I noticed that during the most troublesome times in my life there is only one set of footprints. I don't understand why you left my side when I needed you most." The Lord said: "My precious child, I never left you during your times of trial. Where you see only one set of footprints, I was carrying you."
